Diagnostic Services: Medical Diagnosis

There are two types of diagnosis for autism: 1) an educational diagnosis; and 2) a medical diagnosis. The so-called "medical" diagnosis may be provided by any professional with a terminal degree (MD or PhD) and a sub-specialist evaluation is not required. A primary care physician, who is familiar with the characteristics of autism, may make a medical diagnosis. To qualify for intensive in-home therapy through the Children's Long Term Support Waiver, your child will need a medical diagnosis.
